Conservation issue

The road system usage is in disarray in the Mt Hood National Forest. Due to finances, a determination has to be made as to which roads to keep and which to get rid of.
The Mt Hood Travel Plan Campaign Coordinator for BARK (Deb Wechselblatt) will be presenting her thoughts at the next conservation meeting. Her presentation will be on the importance of our involvement in the road solution process which can affect our club's usage. BARK is a forest conservation group in Portland focused on protecting Mt. Hood National Forest and is a coalition of 20 recreation and conservation organizations.

Please STRONGLY consider attending this important meeting which will be at the home of Jane Olson on June 11th at 7:30PM. Lenard Murphy - leonardwmurphy@aol.com

Newsletter Update - Editor: Fendall Winston

I. A lot about the Blazer never changes and some things are always in constant motion. I have heard about the “good old days when 5 [or maybe 7] identical typewriters were assembled to type up the Blazer, one page per typewriter. The present Blazer is assembled as a Word document and distributed as a PDF file to the printer and to the internet readers. The printer (after Lee Squire put the labels on somewhere around 100 issues) is now printing the labels directly on the issue. At $60 /issue, Lee’s efforts probably paid for most of the new floor at Nesika. The basic format of the Blazer hasn’t changed very much since before 1996 when Jim Flores was editor for five years and converted the Blazer to a MS Word document (he was preceded by the wife of one of our presidents (Molly Forsberg) until they got on a sailing boat somewhere. The Blazer file that is in use today still has Louis Sowa as originator who was then followed by Rose Burris: Now I’m finishing my four years.

Trails Traveled

Dogs and Hiking

Being a dog owner myself I wanted to share a sad incident that happened this weekend. I was on a backpack trip led by Gerda Eck this weekend on the Lower Deschutes River. It was a short and pretty hike, hiking in about 3.5 miles and camping in a pretty little meadow. The weather was beautiful and there were a lot of hikers, bikers and runners out on the trail.

On Sunday we were hiking out on the gravel path, with the intention to branch off of the road at the trail junction where you can hike up and around the canyon back to your cars. We decided to take a break at the intersection to decide if we were going to split into 2 groups, as we had a few beginner hikers that did not want to take the longer route out. At this time we saw a few deer running along the ridge which we were watching and then suddenly we saw another one running down towards us. Our first thought was that it was maybe being chased by a coyote, then realized there were two dogs on its tail. The two dogs, ended up getting it down a couple of times, and we can all image what dogs can do to an animal. There was nobody in sight of the dogs, and then about a minute or two later we see a jogger coming down the trail.

We confronted her about the incident, and she did say they were her dogs. She had no idea about what her dogs had just done to this deer as they were completely out of her site. We did let her know that we were going to report her, as she proceeding down the road to her car. The state police showed up about 20 minutes later and unfortunately weren't in time to confront the lady with the two dogs. From what we can see the deer had a broken back leg and had been chewed on a bit. Unfortunately the state police were not able to locate it...

I wanted to share this with everyone because this is not something that we go out in the wilderness to see. We go out there to enjoy the wilderness not bring danger to them. Being a dog owner myself, this is just an example why we really need to be responsible dog owners while we are out hiking.

Thanks for reading!

"Mt. Talbert Nature Park (slow pace Class A)

The leader, June Smelser was joined by one member, Janet Figini, and 3 guests, Glenda, Ruth and Bobbie for an easy uphill hike through the Nature Park which is located just off Mather Rd. in the Sunnyside, Clackamas Town Center area.

This park is surrounded by apartments, homes, businesses, and roads. It is a lovely respite from all of that noise. The hiking trail leads right out of the parking lot, picnic area just off Mather Rd. and goes immediately uphill. This was somewhat daunting for this hiker as I had not been hiking for many years but our leader was true to her word about it being a slow hike.

The day was overcast and cool, just perfect for an uphill hike; the trail was mostly dry and easy to navigate. Trail markers were in place and easy to follow except while on our descent when we took a trail to another trail head instead of the one we were looking for. Our mistake, not the marker! We were quickly back on the descending trail however and made the smaller loop of two offered within 3 hours. All in all, a lovely way to spend an afternoon.

Hells Canyon Backpack, Apr 24-27, 2008

Six TCO members spent 4 days backpacking the Snake River National Recreation Trail on the Idaho side of Hells Canyon, which is the deepest canyon in North America – deeper than the Grand Canyon. We had made reservations to be picked up at Pittsburg Landing by the weekly mail boat from Clarkston. The jet boat powered up-river through rapids and against a strong current, stopping to deliver mail at ranches along the way. We were dropped off at Sheep Creek Ranch, the final mail stop about 17 miles upstream of Pittsburg Landing. We hoisted our backpacks and proceeded to hike upstream for another 4 miles to Bills Creek. Along the way, we encountered one rattlesnake and a cougar-killed deer carcass, and we saw vast displays of wildflowers. The trail climbed and dropped to negotiate rugged hillsides, some times crossing vast grasslands high above the river and at other times hugging dynamite-blasted rock walls. Chukars and canyon wrens serenaded us from the cliffs and we saw mule deer watching us from the ridge above. We could see snow showers raking the mountains thousands of feet above but the moisture mostly did not reach the canyon floor. The next day, we turned back and began hiking downstream towards Pittsburg Landing. We passed Sheep Creek Ranch and continued another 3 miles to Pine Bar. The clouds broke up and we relaxed in the sun. On day 3, we hiked 8 miles to historic Kirkwood Ranch, climbing 400 feet over Suicide Point where the trail has been carved out of the cliff face. Kirkwood Ranch campground felt luxurious with flush toilets and picnic tables. On day 4, we hiked the last 6 miles back to Pittsburg Landing and our cars. We had picked the ideal time for this trip, before it got too hot in the canyon and while all the wildflowers were in bloom.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

By Susan Saul

TCO and money are recurring topics of discussion in the club.

TCO Tax Status: Past presidents and past treasurers have given me varying opinions about whether or not TCO is federally recognized as a charitable non-profit. Apparently TCO once was recognized by the Internal Revenue Service as a charitable non-profit. When the Nesika land was sold in 1977 and the proceeds invested, TCO lost its federal recognition because too much income was generated from the investment earnings as compared to member contributions. Today, TCO pays corporate taxes like any other business. Contributions to TCO, including cash, materials, services and mileage driven on club business, are not deductible on federal income taxes.

Trip Costs: I sometimes hear the comment: "TCO has deep pockets: why should participants have to pay trip fees or trip costs?" The $1 trip fee (50¢ for Wednesday morning hikes) goes towards our club's liability insurance. In addition, TCO long has had a policy that all trips are revenue-neutral. Any costs associated with the trip, including up-front expenses to scout the trip, should be shared among the participants. The board reaffirmed this policy at the May 2008 board meeting.

The Wilderness Outing is additionally expected to generate a 5 percent net profit because the club advances money each year to pay a deposit for the packer. The revenue repays the club for lost use of the advanced money over 6-8 months and for equipment replacement.

Subsidies: The main uses of the income from our investments are to support the lodges and pay the administrative assistant. Lodge fees provide just a small part of the money necessary to maintain and repair the lodges, pay utilities, taxes, insurance and fees, and provide staples like soap and coffee. The administrative assistant is on a fixed contract of 20 hours per week. The club also substantially subsidizes the annual banquet to keep the cost low for attendees.

History - November 1979 Trail Blazer

Here's a story as told by Fern Becker Anderson who received the 2008 Henry Waespe Distinguished Service Award. It comes from a request by Darrel Tarter in 1979 for a Trails Club experience.

Two requirements to be met before we could take our first trip to Nesika Lodge were that we would walk all the way in and out without having to be carried and that we could go to bed in the dorm when our parents were still at the lodge.

When I was just over three years old, I felt I could meet these requirements, so on August 13 -14, 1938, my parents took me on my first trip to Nesika for the "Old Timer's Chicken Dinner." I don't remember too much about it, except the elated feeling that I finally had achieved the goal of going to the 'cabin' with my parents. There were 50 people at Nesika that weekend and the weather was good with a few clouds and temperature about 70°.

Little girls didn't wear slacks in 1938, so I hiked in a dress with matching panties and high-top shoes with knee high socks.

It was a good weekend, one of just over 118 [and counting] trips I have enjoyed to Nesika, thanks to my parents and many friends in the Trails Club.
